MR. TAFT AS A GOLF PLAYER

IN MATCH PLAY HE IS NOT AN EASY MAN TO BEAT.

His Tee Shots Are Made With Much Care Drive-His Average Medal Score Has Been in the Neighborhood of 96.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The truth in print about Taft at golf will not on the one hand cause any cup winner to be envious or on the other hand make the head of the nation ashamed of his game. This may convey the thought that President Taft is neither a very good nor a very bad golfer.

A good many persons have manifested a desire to know something NEWS OF PLAYS AND PLAYERS more definite about Mr. Taft's game of Fred Thompson Discovers a New Star to golf-his style of play, his temper and emperament while in action and above all his average medal score. To take the last first it may be said that the President's average medal score is not a very low one but that in match play he is not an easy man to beat. He has a way of plodding through the middle of the course all the time, making as straight as possible for the little cup on the next green. Even at that he is not remarkable for his accuracy either in the long game or the

the ball intently, after planting his feet well apart, and swinging his club back slowly, indicating that he is playing for a sure rather than a brilliant drive. A good illustration of the President's best style of play from the tee was seen at the Chevy Chase Club last month, when he was playing in a four ball match with Walter J. Travis and two others. Mr. Taft's side had the honor of the eighteenth hole, and although no gallery followed the President and his companions, a large numbers of club members were gathered on the lawn near the home green. The eighteenth hole at Chevy Chase is only 187 yards long, and the tee can be seen from the clubhouse lawn. The Fresident stepped out on the tee, and after a caddy about one-fifth of his size had teed the ball Mr. Taft addressed it with his driver in his usual deliberate manner. Then followed the slow swing backward, succeeded by a hard and steady swat of the gutta percha sphere. In an instant it was seen that the President had driven accurately both as to distance and direction. The ball came straight for the green at a good height, and after a short roll stopped about ten feet from the cup. The crack Travis, the President's partner in the four ball match, drove with an iron instead of with wood, as the President had done, but his ball, although on the putting green, landed wood, as the President had done, but his ball, although on the putting green, landed at a point much further from the cup than Mr. Taft's. This drive was typical of the President's etyle of play. It is also rather illustrative that Mr. Taft required a four for the hole, although it looked as if had an easy three, with a fair chance for a two.

Since Mr. Taft resumed play this spring his average medal score has probably been in the neighborhood of 96. He played better golf than that last summer and last winter at Hot Springs. Va., and Augusta, Ga., but at that time he was playing nearly every day, while he has recently been playing not oftener than once or twice a week.

The President's short game is perhaps not quite as good as his long gamemeaning by the latter of course his drives from the tee and his brassie work. He is a little too likely to play short of the hole in his approach puts, and his strokes from the rough and from artificial hazards do not always yield adequate results. It frequently happens that his medal score is spoiled by his failure to extricate himself readily from "trouble" on one or two

The two young men were on a dangerous errand. The time was so late on Friday night that it was practically yesterday morning. Through the blackness of the Flatbush woods they had pushed on and on. For they are mounted cops attached to the Snyder avenue police station and have to push on and on. And the country was infested with desperate horse thieves.
